“And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work.”

2 Corinthians 9:8
—NRSV
What qualities should a stewardship leader have?

These competencies are a way of thinking about what attributes or assets a well-formed stewardship leader would have. This list is meant to be a guide for leadership formation in this church. Those who work with stewardship in congregations may find these competencies helpful for their work. These competencies can help calibrate stewardship health for all who lead, no matter the number of years of service to this church or what title is held.

The list assumes that every leader in the ELCA grounds stewardship behaviors in beliefs about one’s relationship with God. The core perspectives column reflects beliefs; the core practices column reflects abilities or behaviors; and the core leadership skills column reflects behaviors the leader uses to lead others.

This document has been developed (as directed by the 2007 Churchwide Assembly) by the Stewardship of Life Institute and has been reviewed and favorably received by ELCA seminars. These competencies are offered to this church for guidance and advice in forming and supporting effective, healthy, missional public ministers with clear perspectives, sound personal habits and confident leadership skills in stewardship.

Three questions to measure Stewardship Competencies

1. Perspective—as a person develops into a steward, what core messages about stewardship will a well-formed steward be able to articulate to self, church and society?

2. Practice—as a person develops into a stewardship leader, what core practices should we expect to see in a well-formed leader?

3. Skill—as a person develops into a steward, what core skills should we expect to see in a well-formed steward who can help bring capacity to this church’s mission in witness and service to God?
