

LUTHERAN DISASTER RESPONSE
2017 HURRICANES: ONE YEAR LATER

AUGUST 2018

ELCA.org/disaster

In the second half of 2017, a rapid succession of hurricanes – especially Harvey, Irma and Maria – interrupted the lives of millions of our neighbors. More than 4.9 million households in the United States registered for assistance from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

with life-changing support – from emergency relief supplies including batteries and bottled water, to emotional and spiritual care, to repairing and rebuilding damaged homes.

Lutheran Disaster Response's supporters responded with incredible generosity to these disasters. Combined, you gave more than $15 million to hurricane response efforts, showing your dedication to helping our neighbors.

The damage caused by the 2017 hurricanes was so catastrophic and extensive that the recovery will take five to seven years or more. Lutheran Disaster Response is known for staying until long after the headlines change. Thanks to your support, Lutheran Disaster Response can accompany survivors of disasters until this response is complete.

Thanks to you, survivors of hurricanes in Texas, Georgia, Florida, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Haiti and Cuba have been connected

Please give today to support this ongoing response and others like it.
