

3. We strive to be a church connected to each other across our three expressions (churchwide, synods, congregations). When do we do that well? When are the times that challenge that sense of connection?

4. In consideration of the previous three questions, are there avenues for new mission/ministry that are important but are resisted by my congregation or by me? What are those opportunities? What is the source of the resistance? What might unbind the resistance?

5. What will I take home from this discussion?
