Capital Markets Commentary (as of April 30, 2022)

Capital Markets Overview

The move demonstrates the Fed’s hawkish views on combating the country’s highest inflation rate in four decades. Yields on the 2yr and 10yr treasury bills rose causing the yield curve to steepen slightly from a previously flattened curve.

Domestic Equity Markets
The S&P 500 fell 8.7% in April. 10 of the 11 sectors had negative returns with Consumer Staples returning 2.6%. The largest detractors were Telecom, Consumer Discretionary, and Technology returning -15.6%, -13.0%, and -11.3%, respectively. The biggest contributors after Consumer Staples were Energy and Materials returning -1.5% and -3.5%, respectively.

International Equity Markets
Overall, International equities outperformed the U.S. in April. Developed international markets, as measured by the MSCI EAFE index, returned -6.5% for U.S. currency investors. The MSCI Europe index returned -5.7%, Japanese equities returned -8.8% per the MSCI Japan Index. Emerging market equity markets, as measured by the MSCI Emerging Markets index, returned -5.6%.

Fixed Income Markets
Overall, bond markets declined during the month of April. The Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond index returned -3.8% over the period. The yield on the 10-year Treasury rose to 2.9%. Riskier parts of the bond market had also fallen for the month. The Bloomberg High Yield index returned -3.6% in April.
